

The future of Online Learning Quality: Panellist

Dr Jane Towers-Clark

Head of Academic
Partnerships,
Association of Certified
Chartered Accountants

Dr Jane Towers-Clark is Head of Academic Partnerships, ACCA. A graduate from Exeter University, she started her career as a Chartered Accountant with Ernst and Young, London. She went on to work as a lecturer in accountancy in Singapore and as an auditor in Australia before returning to the UK and going on to become Head of Accounting, Finance and Economics at Oxford Brookes University.

She is co-author of the text book 'Accounting: A Smart Approach' and has a Doctorate in Education from the Institute of Education, UCL. Jane represents ACCA for the UK Higher Education Commission with the current inquiry looking at Higher Education and disabled students and sits on the UK NARIC Quality and Standards Group.

Jane recently was invited by the Pakistan Higher Education Commission to speak at their International Conference on assuring quality through education.